RANDOLPH IS NOT GUILTY.

Preliminary Trial Results in the Freeing of Alabaman.

Montgomery, Ala., June 1.—After two hours of a preliminary trial before Justice of the Peace M. H. Screws, John Randolph, who shot and instantly killed his cousin, Judge F. C. Randolph, last Saturday, was adjudged not guilty of any offense and was discharged without bond.

The justice held that it was a clear case of self-defense, and that the accused was forced to shoot to save his own life, as shown by all the witnesses.

Several witnesses were examined, all of whom showed that the deceased had made repeated threats on the life of the defendant and had told on several occasions that he intended to kill him. As soon as the decision of Justice Screws was made up, he announced it, having adjourned court and returned to his office amid the good wishes of a great crowd who had gathered to see the end of the trial.

WISDOM'S WHISPERS.

It's lucky we don't know how unlucky we may be.

It is difficult to take a woman by surprise in a love affair.

Some people are cranks simply because you can't turn them.

Some men secure all the glory attached to whatever part they assume.

A woman may know very little and yet have a way that carries conviction.

The want of refinement in a man cannot be corrected by the gloss of set phrases.

Some men take on an air of consequence to conceal the weakness of their position.

When a man can hide his thoughts in a smile he holds a powerful weapon of defense.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Too Complacent.

Mr. Grote, the historian of Greece, seemed incapable of caring for himself when moved by consideration for others. His exaggerated acquiescence in what he thought a constructive obligation is illustrated by the last sitting he gave to Millais, who painted his portrait.

The studio was cold. Mr. Grote had removed his overcoat and presently felt sensibly chilled. Yet he did not complain nor resume his overcoat.

"Why did you not say you were chilled?" asked Mrs. Grote when she learned the circumstances.

"I did not like to appear to reproach Mr. Millais for letting the fire go out."

"Well, but there was your thick overcoat?"

"Yes, but I did not know if he would like me to put it on."

"What could one do with a man so incapable of caring for his own absolute necessities?" remarks Mrs. Grote in her "Personal Life" of her husband. "Had I been present, it is superfluous to say, all these scruples would have gone for nothing."

Then He Sulked.

"Mrs. Guschley remarked to me that it must be pleasant to be married to a clever man," said Proudley's wife.

"And what did you say?" queried Proudley.

"I told her, of course, that I didn't know; that I had only been married once."

Doubting Dennis.

Judy—Will ye give me yer promise, Dennis, that ye'll love me forever? Dennis—Sure, an' O'd like to do that same, Judy, but O'm hardly of the opinion that O'm last as long as that.—New York Times.

Stimulation Without Irritation.

In case of stomach and liver trouble the proper treatment is to stimulate these organs without irritating them. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup aids digestion and stimulates the liver and bowels without irritating these organs like pills or ordinary cathartics. It does not nauseate or gripe and is mild and pleasant to take. J. W. McCollum & Company.
